critical situation

- 1 Fort Wayne is short 231 beds!
- 2 Completion of Parkview Memorial Hospital and construction of its School of Nursing are community necessities.
- 3 Expansion and modernization of Lutheran Hospital are grave community needs.
- 4 Large daily waiting list. On May 1, 1952, 181 persons were on the waiting lists of three hospitals. At times the total exceeds this figure. This is a critical situation.
- 5 The old section of Lutheran Hospital was built in 1904—it needs remodeling and refurbishing. The West Wing was built in 1927 and is crowded beyond capacity. Lutheran must expand.
- 6 Methodist Hospital has occupied its present quarters for 31 years. The building is 36 years old and was never designed as a hospital. Operation is difficult because of age, construction and overcrowding.
- 7 No hospital construction in Fort Wayne since 1927. Population in 1930 was 114,946; 1950 population 133,607. Increase of nearly 19,000.
- 8 Additional and modern operating rooms, and facilities of all types are badly needed.
- 9 Fort Wayne could not cope with industrial or natural disaster, or a major epidemic.
- 10 Patient increase at Methodist Hospital 100% in last five years.
- 11 Lutheran Hospital at or above capacity for last five years.

THE SOLUTION OF THIS CRITICAL PROBLEM IS

In Your Hands!

nited for an acute need

The Fort Wayne hospital situation is acute—an emergency exists! Fort Wayne has only 618 general hospital beds to serve an area which needs a minimum of 849 beds.

To solve this emergency the Lutheran and Methodist Hospital Boards of Directors have united in a Federated Campaign. The Boards of Directors, hospital authorities, physicians and responsible citizens' groups have agreed that "such a plan is the best way to relieve this critical condition."

Completion of the Parkview Memorial Hospital and the expansion of Lutheran Hospital are community musts!

Construction of the Parkview Memorial is nearly 20% completed. An oversubscribed campaign in 1950 made possible the beginning of construction, and only because of economic and governmental changes is it impossible to complete the project with funds available.

Lutheran Hospital, with its present capacity of 163 adult beds, needs a new addition to take care of its overcrowded conditions. A section of the present hospital is 48 years old and needs refurbishing. Under the present plan a complete remodeling program will convert the institution into a thoroughly modern and fully equipped hospital with 305 adult beds, 40 junior beds and cribs, and 52 bassinets.

It is true that "there is no wealth save health." If we don't have health, wealth is of little value. The completion of the Federated Hospital Campaign is not only imperative—it is good sense and good business, because improved hospital facilities in this community will pay dividends in improved health for all.

The contemplated Federated Campaign is described on the following pages. This story is of vital importance to you and your family. You owe it to yourself and to them to study the plan. The plan shows Fort Wayne's existing hospital need and what we will gain in hospital facilities through wholehearted support of the Lutheran and Parkview Memorial Federated Hospital Building Fund.

FORT WAYNE'S HOSPITAL

A minimum of $2,000,000 is needed to meet our emergency hospital situation. This amount was determined after a careful study of the minimum needs of each institution.

Construction at Parkview is already under way. If the response in the campaign is generous, Parkview Memorial Hospital should be completed by Christmas of 1953.

For the first time in Lutheran Hospital's long record of service it is necessary to appeal to the public for construction funds.

PROBLEM IS In Your Hands

Expanding Lutheran Hospital...

Expansion plans for the Lutheran Hospital include an entirely new wing and extensive refurbishing of the present building. When completed, the hospital will have a minimum capacity of 305 adult beds, 40 junior beds and cribs, and 52 bassinets. Its present total bed capacity is 236.

This is a gain of 161 beds, including 7 bassinets. In the event of an emergency, capacity could be further increased without approaching the crowded conditions which now exist.

Founded in 1903, the Lutheran Hospital has served the citizens of this area for nearly a half-century. Its history coincides with the greatest period of medical progress since the dawn of civilization. Lutheran has kept pace with the advances of modern science, but like other hospitals in Fort Wayne, it has been unable to keep pace with the demand for its services.

The waiting list at Lutheran Hospital on May 1, 1952 was 129. It has been jammed to more than capacity for five years.

Part of its present facilities are in need of rearranging for more efficient service.

It is in need of additional operating rooms and enlargement of X-ray, laboratory, and general medical and nursing facilities.

High on the list of improvements is the maternity department, including nurseries for the new-born.

A little hospital within a hospital—the pediatrics department—needs enlargement in order to better care for sick and crippled youngsters and infants.

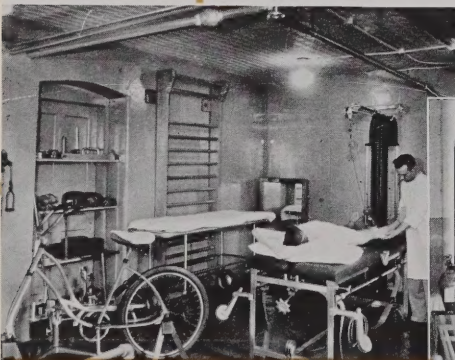

Storage, kitchen and waiting-room areas are inadequate.

The new additions and general improvements in the present building will make the hospital more efficient than ever, and extend its services to a larger number of patients.

Construction will start as soon as possible after the necessary funds are made available.

In Your Hands

ompleting Parkview Memorial . . .

The 18-acre plot at Randalia and State is the scene of intense activity. The $4,246,962 Parkview Memorial Hospital is rapidly rising!

But—it cannot be completed unless additional funds are available—a minimum of $600,000 is needed to finish the job. It is estimated that the funds on hand and yet to be collected from the previous campaign will permit construction to proceed on schedule through March, 1953.

The fate of the Parkview Memorial Hospital is in your hands.

The entire project will be completed by Christmas of 1953 if all segments of the community accept their share of responsibility.

A natural question at this time could well be, "You had a highly successful campaign in 1950. Why can't you finish the job?"

The campaign of two years ago sought $750,000 with which to supply the 1950 projected cost of $3,016,703 for the new hospital. The approved government grant at that time was one-half of the total construction cost, or $1,508,351. The campaign was over-subscribed by $500,000, fulfilling hopes that sufficient funds also would be available for a School of Nursing.

Then came the Korean incident in June of 1950. This unexpected development had two consequences insofar as the hospital construction program was concerned:

Congress shifted emphasis to rearmament and in so doing cut in half its appropriation in aid of hospital construction. As a result the Government grant was frozen at $1,508,351 regardless of construction costs—a loss of more than $600,000 in funds available.

Construction costs skyrocketed before the architectural plans could be completed and the contracts awarded, adding $1,230,259 to the anticipated construction cost.

In July, 1951, when bids were opened for the hospital's construction, the over-all cost added up to $4,246,962, which was $1,230,259 above the projected cost of $3,016,703 as of the spring of 1950. The cost of the hospital alone exceeded by $600,000 the amount of funds available, and there was nothing left for the School of Nursing, except $100,000 which had been contributed for that purpose over many years.

(See page three for breakdown of costs, funds on hand and needed.)

We are the beneficiaries . . .

CITIZENS of the Fort Wayne area have received the services of its three general hospitals with very little expense to the public for original capital construction costs, capital improvement and maintenance.

The contribution to human welfare and community health that has been provided by the Lutheran, Catholic and Methodist church groups is immeasurable.

These three non-profit community hospitals as they stand today represent a community asset value in excess of $6,000,000.

At present costs, they could not be replaced for less than $12,000,000.

In addition to the original cost of these institutions, literally millions of dollars have been poured into the community by sponsoring groups to supplement operation and maintenance costs.

Over two centuries—206 years—of service are represented by the three Fort Wayne hospitals.

Methodist Hospital, an outgrowth of Fort Wayne City Hospital, which later assumed the name of Hope Hospital, was founded in 1878. St. Joseph's Hospital was founded in 1868. Lutheran Hospital was founded in 1903.

During this long period of time the citizens of the Fort Wayne area have been the beneficiaries of the "good works" which developed and maintained these hospitals. We have seldom been the benefactors!

Throughout this combined service-period of 206 years the three hospitals have cared for a total of over a half-million patients. This vast number of sick and injured came from all walks of life, and represented all races and creeds.

No Major Appeal for Capital Funds was made until 1943 when Methodist Hospital conducted the first phase of its financing.

This is the first general appeal for building and expansion funds by the Lutheran Hospital.

Today we face an emergency in the Fort Wayne area!

In Your Hands

Fort Wayne's challenge . . .

Fort Wayne is recognized as one of the most progressive cities in the North Central States. It is a great community in every way but one.

Its hospital facilities are entirely inadequate.

It is a city of fine churches, schools, and of outstanding welfare and civic developments. It has taken its place as one of the most important industrial and commercial cities in America. The latter is due to a far-sighted course which is being pursued to diversify its economy.

But—it will be necessary to have adequate hospital facilities and health protection before Fort Wayne can take its place as one of the cities in the nation which leads the way to improved health and welfare for its citizens.

Consider the Fort Wayne of 1930. At that time it had the same hospital facilities it has today—but its population was only 114,946.

Today our metropolitan population is conservatively estimated at 185,000—and our hospital facilities have not expanded.

Can we be proud of this?

The relation of such a business community as ours to its hospital facilities is quite clear.

Commerce and industry have a vital interest and inescapable obligation to provide adequate hospital facilities for their employees. From a strictly business point of view, absenteeism, due to sickness or accidents, cuts into profits.

The Federated Hospital Building Fund needs and deserves the help and support of all Fort Wayne's industry, business and citizens.

THE PROBLEM IS In Your Hands

Why hospitals are overcrowded

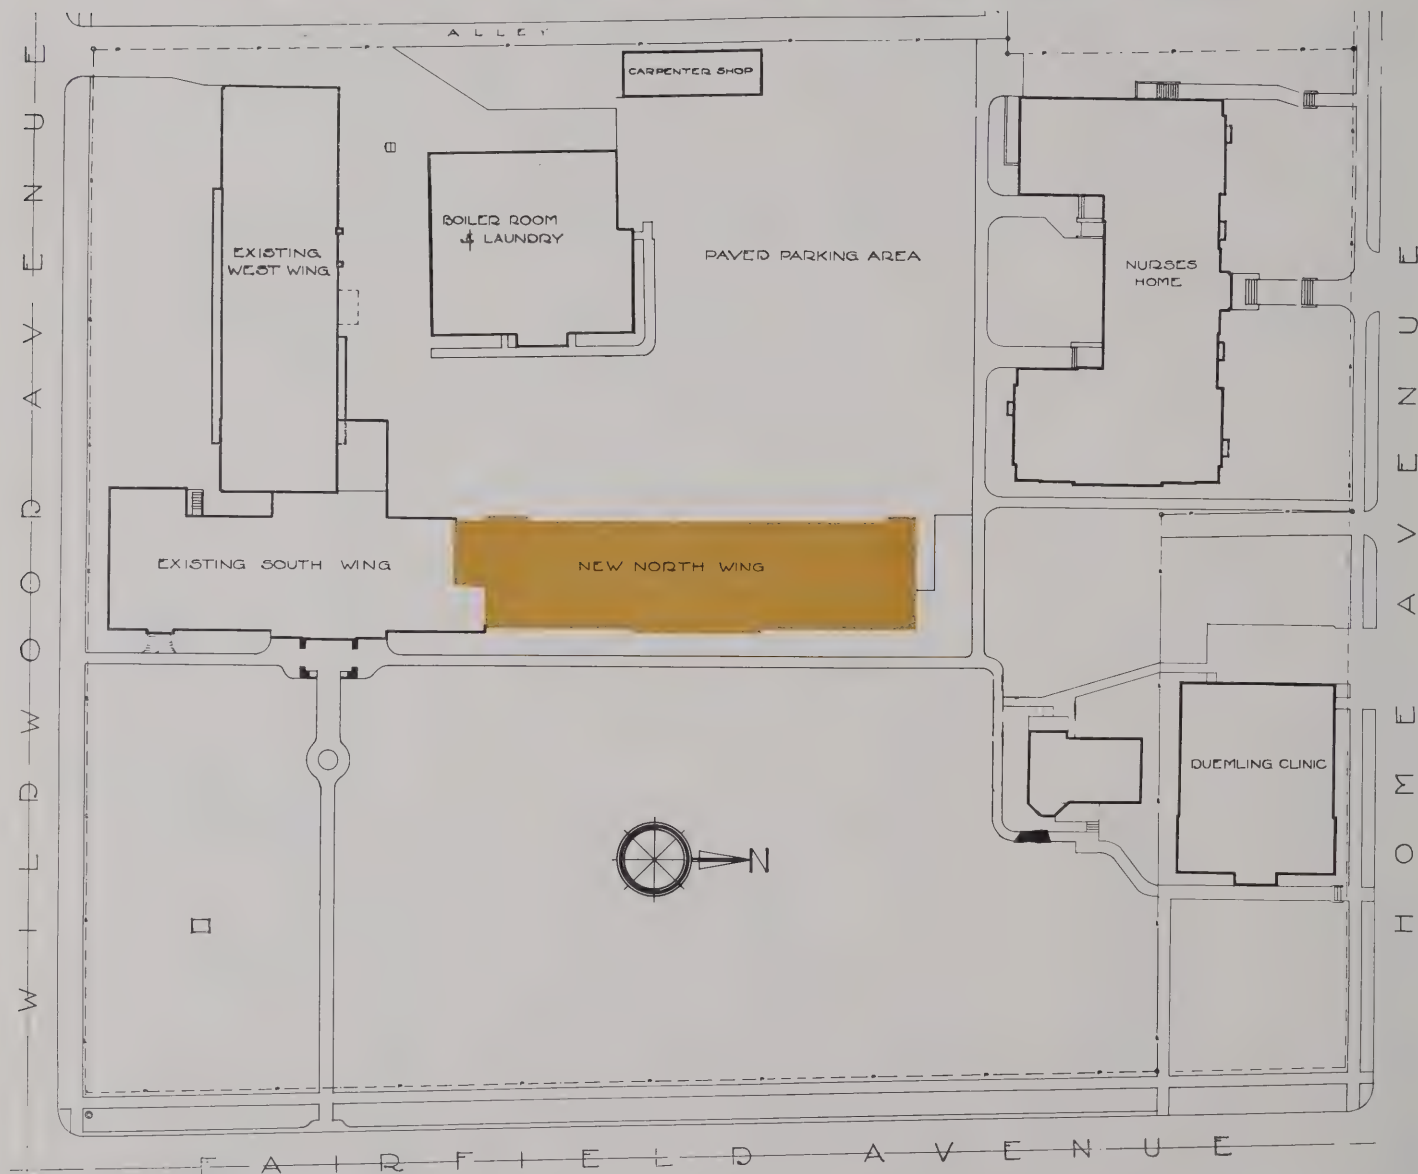

The following reasons are self-explanatory as to why we must expand our facilities NOW:

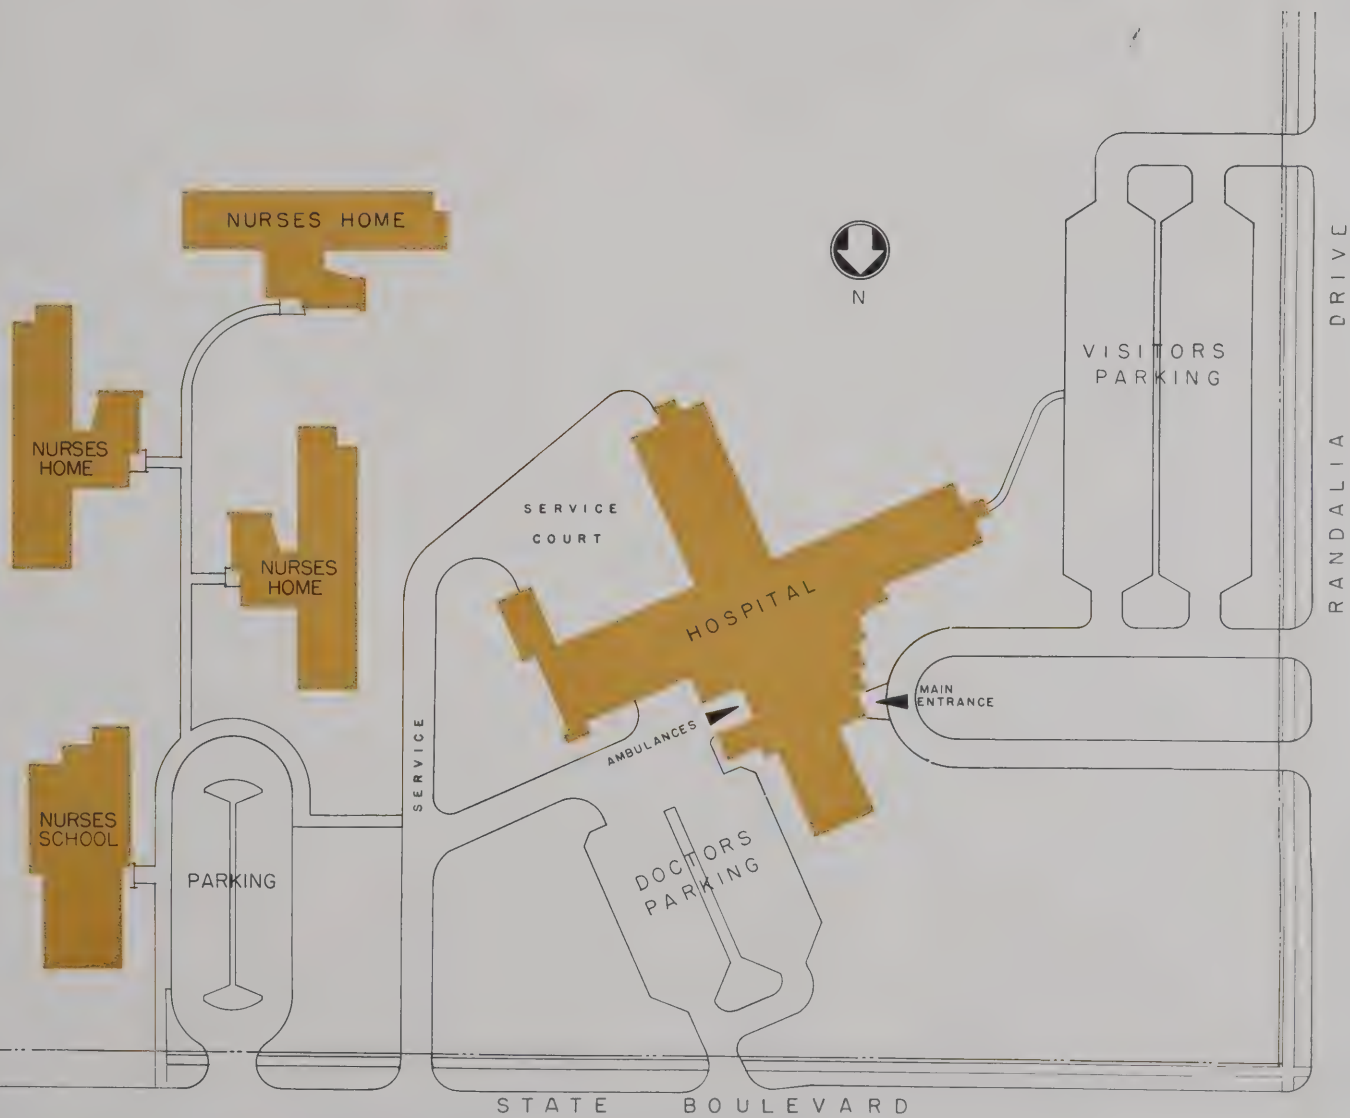

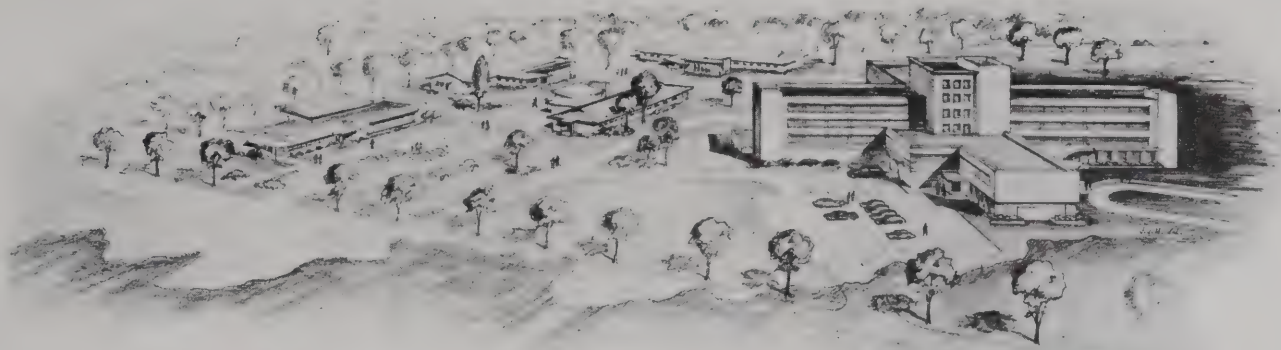

- Increased population since 1940. Big jump in marriages and in birth rate.
- Lack of new hospital construction in depression and war years.
- Constantly increasing public awareness of the value of hospital care in the treatment of illness and injury.
- Increase in holders of hospitalization insurance of all types.
- Scientific advances making hospitalization necessary for diagnosis and treatment of many conditions formerly inadequately cared for in homes.
- Recently developed therapeutical procedures, new techniques, and new drugs which demand hospitalization for maximum effectiveness.
- Increased load on doctors makes hospitalization more satisfactory than home care, conserves time, and gives the doctor complete on-the-spot facilities.

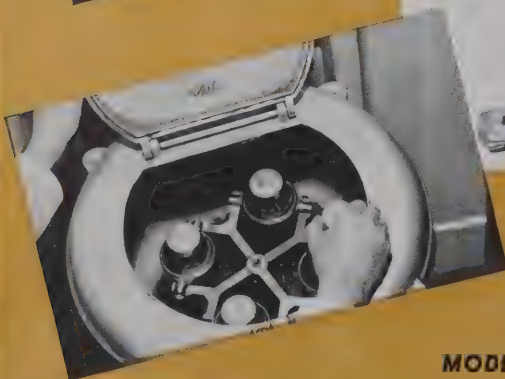

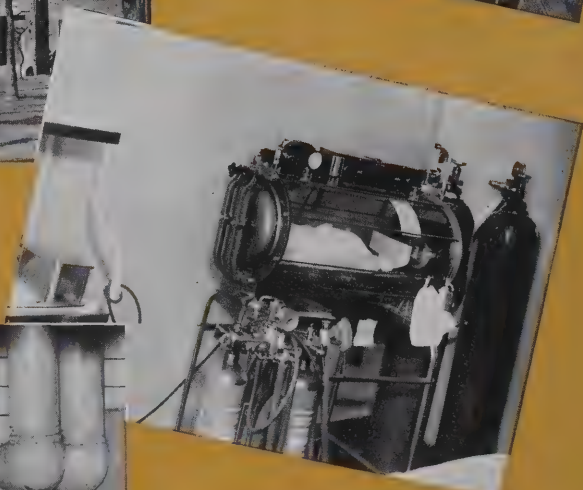

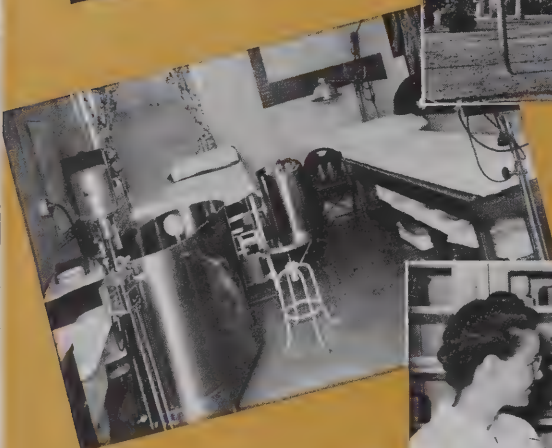

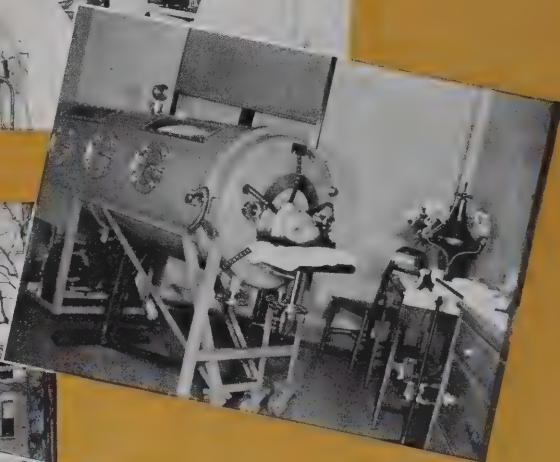

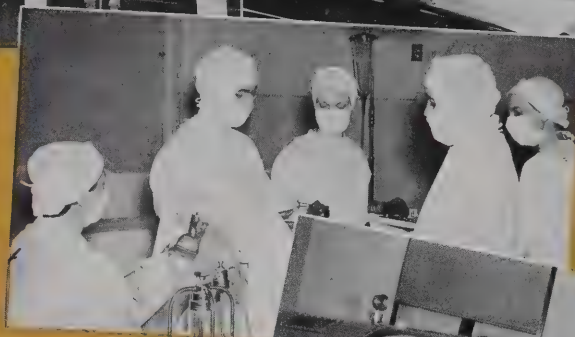

- Housing shortage makes home care of illness difficult, unsatisfactory and expensive. The general public recognizes that hospital care costs less than half of comparable home care.
- Time will intensify our critical hospital problem. Time lost will cost lives.

MANY SKILLS ARE REPRESENTED IN APPLYING
MODERN SCIENCE TO TREAT HUMAN ILLS

n the picture, but not in the campaign

LUTHERAN HOSPITAL SCHOOL OF NURSING

The Lutheran Hospital established its School of Nursing in 1904. From that date the institution has trained hundreds of nurses, and since 1907 has graduated 1,083 skilled nurses.

The School of Nursing is in advance of standard requirements set by the State Board of Nurses' Registration and Nursing Education, and is recognized as being one of the most modern schools and nurses' homes. This building was opened in 1950, and represents a community asset of $800,000. No public campaign was conducted to raise funds for its construction.

The building contains modern living quarters for 160 students, plus a certain number of hospital dietitians and surgery nurses who must be available constantly for emergency duty.

The new building contains modern lecture and classrooms, science laboratories, practice rooms, library and auditorium. These pleasant quarters are conducive to good work and proper educational development.

The spiritual factor is stressed at Lutheran. Early morning chapel is a part of the daily program.

Since the days of Florence Nightingale, nursing has been a necessary part of medical care. The saving of human life depends upon the co-operative relationship of the medical and nursing skills. Nursing education consists not only of theoretical and practical teaching, but of developing the physical and mental stability of the student to meet the crisis in the lives of others. Provision for comfortable living conditions and pleasant surroundings is essential to the maintenance of high standards in the nursing school and to the development of superior nurses.

The Lutheran Hospital School of Nursing is fully accredited, and all graduate nurses become licensed registered nurses after passing the State Board Examination.

The School is affiliated with 19 Lutheran Churches, with Concordia College, and with the St. Louis City Hospital in psychiatric nursing.

home befitting their calling . . .

Architect's sketch of the proposed new Parkview School of Nursing. Three residence buildings, campus style.

The most advanced educational facilities will provide nursing students pleasant surroundings for pursuit of their calling.

The Administration and Educational Building below will be a part of the campus grouping.

PART of the Federated Hospital Building Fund contemplates the construction of facilities for a new School of Nursing, to be erected on the same site as the Parkview Memorial Hospital. $500,000 is included in the building program for this purpose.

$100,000 of the amount needed is now on hand, representing an accumulation over the years from Methodist Conference donations.

The "campus plan" is being considered. This will embrace three Student Homes, each accommodating 40 students. Each will include 19 double rooms, 2 single rooms, lounge, 2 parlors, and complete living facilities.

The Educational Building will contain classrooms, science and dietetic laboratory, lecture rooms, nursing-arts room and other facilities. When completed, it will be in advance of standard requirements set by the State Board of Nurses' Registration and Nursing Education, and will accommodate a normal enrollment of 120 students.

The pressing problem at Methodist Hospital is the replacement of the existing "far-below-par" and outmoded housing and educational facilities for nurses. Once the hospital has these facilities, it will be in a position, for the first time, to fulfill completely its 54-year-old program of nurses' training for the benefit, not alone of its own operation, but of the community as well.

The Parkview Memorial Hospital School of Nursing will have much to offer the young woman seeking a career in nursing.

Academically, the school has performed splendid service since it was founded in 1897. Limited facilities for student nurses have curtailed the educational program to the point where the demand for graduates far exceeds the supply.

Hospital authorities and the medical profession of this area frequently are given cause for grave concern when faced with the critical shortage of graduate nurses. All too frequently one of our hospitals posts an urgent call for registered nurses, only to learn that not a one is available for duty.

Until such time as the five overcrowded buildings which house students at Methodist Hospital can be replaced with modern and adequate structures, nothing can be done to increase the number of annual graduates from the school. Present buildings are obsolete and not suitable for student housing. The Indiana State Association of Nurses has been most critical of these conditions.

Despite these handicaps and limited facilities, the Methodist Hospital School of Nursing has graduated more than 400 students. The 1952 class, with 40 graduates, was the largest in the school's history.

It is accredited by the Indiana State Board of Nurses' Registration and Nursing Education. It employs a faculty of competent nurse educators and receives additional excellent instruction from members of the medical staff.

Living memorials that serve . . .

Charles Townsend Copeland said, "For the common man, the best memorial is some beneficent thing or function that shall bear his name."

Through the generations the development of memorials has taken many forms. The white shafts of marble at Lexington, Concord and Gettysburg—in the Argonne and, later, on far-flung points of the world—as well as in all communities—these have indicated the devotion of past generations to their aspirations and their heroes. Time has given them a reverence that the world will know, always. So is formed a link between the generations.

Others seek to show their veneration in a different manner: observing with compassion the ill and afflicted, they are moved to build temples for their care. Thus do they preserve the memory of those they loved.

What could be more expressive of a cherished memory than the perpetuation of a hospital room or facility that will aid in the healing of the sick for generations to come? The Lutheran and Parkview Memorial Federated Hospital Building Fund offers you such an opportunity.

These memorials may be established in your name or in the name of some member of your family. They may be dedicated in the name of a company or the employees of a firm, a friend or a business associate. Clubs, organizations and church groups may wish to perpetuate their names. You may wish to cherish the memory of one who made the supreme sacrifice for his country.

You may choose a room, a surgery, a nurses' home, or you may want to memorialize an entire department or a nursing unit. All are possibilities. Study the list in the Memorial Opportunities booklet, and make a choice. Many are available in every hospital. Appropriate plaques will be placed upon the memorial of your selection.

These memorials will evidence to present and future citizens of this community your civic pride, your generosity, and your deep interest in the health and well-being of your fellow-man.

What Fort Wayne Doctors say . . .

"As members of the Medical Staffs of the Lutheran and Methodist Hospitals, we are aware of the great need for enlargement and improvement of the community's hospital facilities. Adequate, modern hospitals are one of the strongest aids a doctor can have in the treatment of his patients.

"Our Medical Staffs are in complete accord with the present expansion plan of the Lutheran Hospital and completion of Parkview Memorial Hospital. We urge all citizens of the community to support the Campaign for funds with which to construct, enlarge, renovate and rehabilitate our hospitals."

HOW TO INVEST IN YOUR HOSPITALS

Financial support to our hospitals in a very real sense represents an investment in the future health, welfare and growth of our community.

The federal government, as well as governments of several states levying income, gift and succession premium taxes, directly encourage such gifts through exemption. As a result tax savings make possible large gifts at a minimum cost to the corporate or individual donor.

Such investment gifts may be made to the Lutheran and Parkview Memorial Federated Hospital Building Fund in several ways. Gifts may be made in cash, through transfer of securities or property, or through a foundation.

"The support of educational, health, scientific and welfare activities is something more than a duty—it is an opportunity as well." These words are those of Beardsley Ruml, author of the "pay-as-you-go" plan of income tax collection, and Theodore Geiger. Their views on corporate giving were recently published in a pamphlet by the National Planning Association. They say further: "The impact of solidly conceived corporate contributions for welfare and educational purposes increases geometrically its size . . . They (such contributions) create a highly favorable atmosphere for the corporation within which its other business activities—for example, its sales promotion and its labor relations—have a much better chance of being successful."

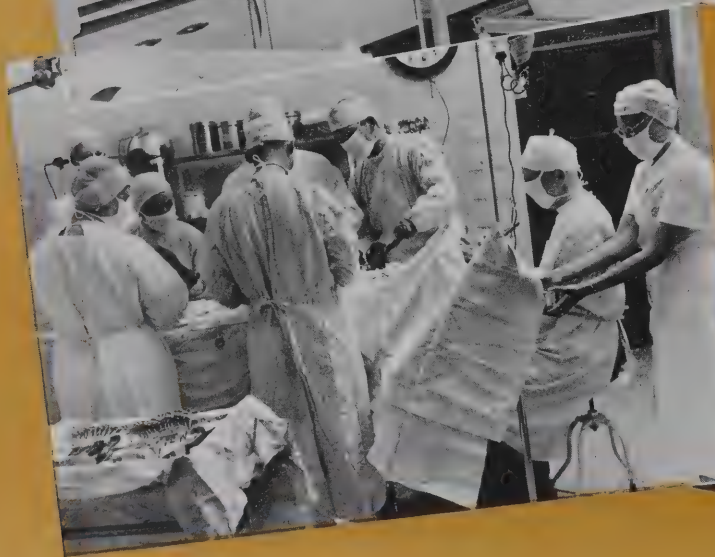

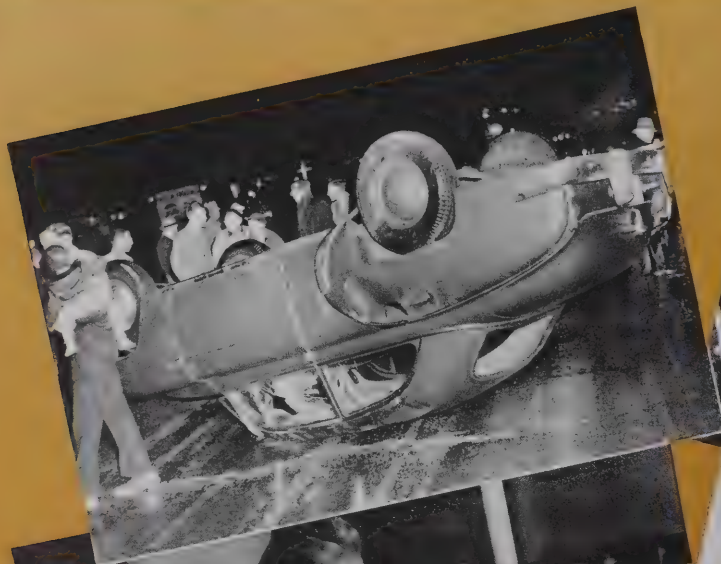

Gifts are deductible in computing individual or corporate federal income tax, within the 15% and 5% limitations (respectively) prescribed.

Gifts made in property present these advantages:

- (a) They are deductible under the Federal Income Tax to the extent of 15% of net income in the case of individuals, and 5% of net income in the case of corporations;
- (b) They are entirely free of gift tax burdens;
- (c) They reduce the estate so as to minimize eventual federal estate and Indiana inheritance taxes.

THREE YEARS TO PAY

When you consider your contribution to the Federated Hospital Building Fund, remember that the gift does not have to be paid in full at the time you sign the pledge card. You may spread payment of pledges over a three-year period, paying annually, quarterly, or monthly, as you prefer. Actually, this gives you four tax years to liquidate your pledge.

THE NEED FOR ADEQUATE HOSPITAL SERVICE INCREASES AS LIVING STANDARDS PROGRESS

our hospitals . . . built for life

If you've ever rushed a sick or injured person through the night to your hospital, you're not inclined thereafter to take the hospital for granted. Once that's happened, the hospital assumes a new, vital importance to you.

Focal Point of Health Service

Every community has its share of people who, for years, have no really-direct contact with their local hospitals—then suddenly are critically dependent upon them for help, for life itself.

In an emergency, in an hour of crisis in their lives—or in the lives of members of their families—they turn to their hospital.

Hospitals exist to take care of the sick and injured in their hours of need. The hospital family—that group of doctors, nurses and other personnel who work together as a team—combine training and talents to provide the best care and treatment that medical science has made available.

From the engineers in the maintenance department to the technicians in the laboratory, all the skills and resources of the hospital are linked to offer top-flight care—the very finest in all the world!

Civilian Defense

Today, hospitals have assumed new responsibilities, particularly important as the nation steps up its mobilization.

Defense authorities consider hospitals “the focal point for health services in civilian defense planning.”

To meet these new obligations is one of the greatest challenges hospitals of the nation have ever undertaken.

Our hospitals need your support. You can best show your appreciation by taking an interest in your community hospitals . . . by backing them actively in everything they do to provide better quality care for you and for everyone in your community.

Fort Wayne . . . a medical center

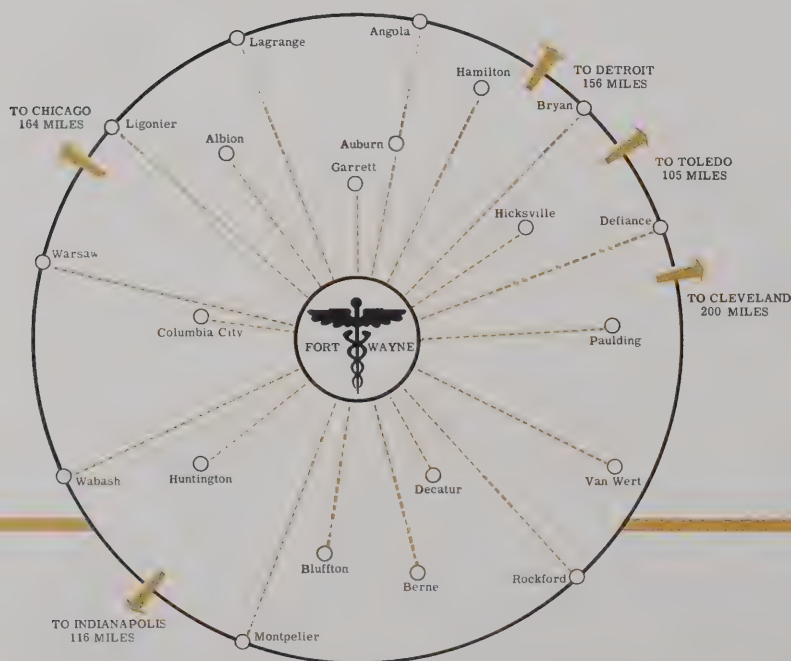

A hospital's community comprises the entire region it serves. Fort Wayne is the hub of an area approximating 50 miles in radius and represents an estimated population of 500,000.

One of every four patients served by Methodist and Lutheran Hospitals comes from outside the city limits of Fort Wayne.

The graph below indicates the area served. Every man, woman and child in this area has a personal interest in the Federated Hospital Building Fund.

In the field of medicine, Fort Wayne has an illustrious record of caring for its sick through the early organization of voluntary non-profit hospitals. These hospitals were instituted and have been maintained by groups interested only in improving the lot of suffering humanity. This is a tradition which we must sustain.

The completion of our hospital building programs will attract additional skilled doctors and encourage the further development and extension of medical services of all kinds, such as: brain surgery, cardiac surgery, cancer surgery, application of radioactive products developed from atomic research, improved care of premature babies, bronchoscopic service, psychiatric service, and many others.
